

Convention Hall Packed on the Last Night.

Brilliant and Dense Throng Crowded the Great Hall and Gave the Fair a Fitting Close.

The teachers' bazaar, which has been running at Convention Hall for the past two weeks, closed Saturday night in a blaze of giory. Notwithstanding the edict that went forth to the effect that no children would be admitted, the attendance was the largest of any since Central High School night, when the hall was so packed that it was all but impossible to move hand or foot.

The youngsters were one and all bound to see the last of the affair and give it a proper send-off, and they were on hand in full force, accompanied by their parents.

It was a merry crowd, however, and although there was not the excitement of the auction sale which usually winds up most big fairs, there was pienty of fun and merrymaking to keep the crowd in a jolly good humor and send them all home with the conviction that the teachers' bamar was the most successful venture of the kied ever put upon the Washington market.

The alimini of the colleges and universities of the District were the guests of the evening, and the "administration booth," where the reception committee did the henors, was crowded throughout the entire evening with a continuous line of distinguished visitors.

The musical program was a carefully selected one. It opened with a march, "King Cotton," by Sousa, which was followed by many nominar and classical airs.

howed by many popular and classical airs.
The voting for the various articles which were donated by merchants of the city was waged fast and furious. All of the contests were scheduled to close at 10 o'clock but many a pretty little miss got in one or more votes on the sly long after that hour had passed.

The counting committee, composed of Messrs. S. M. Ryder, Charles Finckel and S. E. Kraemer, took charge of the ballots as fast as possible, but they have so much work before them that they will hardly be able to amounce the results before next Tuesday. Monday night was first selected as the night to award the prizes but it was not dreamed then that the ballots would reach the proportions that they did.

There were any number of things to be There were any number of things of voted for, from a Smith & Wessourevolver and a Colis rifle up to a whole houseful of furniture and a trip to Europe. Among the most prominent of the articles was a $300 Knabe plano, which was voted for by the Central high school, the Force school by the Central ugit school, the received and the Harrison school.

The Centrals were in the lead for some time, but the Force school took a sudden spurt and closed so strong last alght that the count will probably show them to be

The bicycle dealers turned out in greas-single when asked for donations, and they made a splendid showing. Five wheels have been earnessly fought for. There was a Liberty wheel donated by W. D. Hadger, which was to go to the w. B. Hagger, what was a go of the most popular pupil in the Business or the Western high schools; a Crawford for the most popular by in the first division; a Crescent for the most popular pupil of second division B; a Warwick for the most popular pupil of the Central or Eastern high schools, and a Sterling for sixth division, a

Besides these there were other articles of all kinds and descriptions, too numerous to mention. The contests for them all carried on with a vim and energy that were carried on with a vim and energy that spoke well for the interest the pupils took in the welfare of the bazaar.

There was some talk of continuing the fair for another week but as nearly all of the teachers who took part in it were ready to drop last night from exhaustion, this project was instantly cried down.

The lowest estimate places the profits after all expenses have been paid at close to $20,000. Some say that it will reach $25,000, but it will be hard to tell for several days just what the amount will be. What ever it is, one and all agree that the What ever it is, one and all agree that the bazaar has been a brilliant success.
